Budgeting made easy

Budget. It's a small word, but it has the power to terrify some people. Working out your budget involves seeing how much you earn and spend, and on what. It's a simple matter of discovering where your money is going each month and how much you should have left over at the end.

A budget can help you to see if you can afford something you want, or it could highlight areas where you could make a saving, or it could simply confirm what you knew all along – that you're on top of your finances. Whichever category you think you're in, sitting down and putting your income and outgoings down on paper can be a big help. Ignoring your finances won't solve any problems and once you've finished, you could be pleasantly surprised.

Working out your budget doesn't have to be a daunting task. All you have to do is add up all your income and subtract your bills and other outgoings. It's best to work out your budget monthly, even if you are paid weekly, as that is often how most regular bills need to be paid. To make it simple, the next few pages contain our quick budget planner. Simply fill in your details and you'll be able to see exactly how your finances lie.

Before you start

Here's a couple of tips to help you along the way. Having your online account open or statement in front of you, as well as your household bills to hand, can save time, as you won't have to stop halfway through to search out amounts and charges.

Income

Your income is usually your salary from your job and that of your partner or spouse, but it could also include extras such as child benefit.

2. Outgoings

Your spending will fall into several different categories, from household bills to day-to-day expenses. Just be sure to include everything.

Now that you've taken a closer look at your finances, you'll be able to see areas where you can make changes or be reassured that you have been doing the right things all along.

If you feel that you need to spend less or you need to spend differently, here are a few tips to help you do so in a painless way.

- ► Keep track of what you spend. A diary is a good way to add up all your expenses. You'll quickly spot what is essential and what you can do without.
- Keep an eye on your finances. Use Banking 365* to make sure that you always know how much is in your accounts.
- Shop around. In this climate it is easy to find bargains, don't just settle for the price in-store, go online and to different shops to find the best price for any goods you buy.
- ▶ Use Direct Debit it's free to set up. Pay as many bills as you can by direct debit, this will ensure that you don't miss a payment and incur unnecessary costs. It's also good to ensure your direct debit dates are aligned with the date you get paid. You should make sure you have money in your account to cover any direct debits due.
- Make a plan. Be definite about what you want your finances to do for you. Whether it's buying a house or a car, or even just saving for a holiday, making a plan of how to pay for it is the first step to getting there.

Borrowing Sensibly

Section 2:

Borrowing sensibly

There are some important questions that you need to answer before you borrow money. You should ask yourself if you need to spend at the moment, if you have other ways of financing the purchase and if you can afford to pay back the money you are planning to borrow.

If you do decide to borrow money then it is important to work out how much you can afford as this will affect which borrowing option is best for you. You will need to look at:

- the interest rate,
- the cost per month,
- how much you will repay in total, and
- any penalties for missed or late payments.

Managing your credit cards

Credit cards can offer a convenient and flexible way to buy things when you need to, without having to carry cash. However it is important that you keep on top of your spending so your balance does not creep up on you. Here are just a few tips to help you manage your credit card with ease.

- Check out the interest free credit period between buying goods and interest due date. You may have up to 56 days so make sure to clear your balance before interest is due.
- Manage your card online. keep a close eye on your credit card balance, view your transactions and even pay it off at any time, without having to leave your seat.
- Set up a direct debit for your minimum payment or for a fixed percentage of the outstanding balance, that way you can avoid late payment fees and penalties. Ensure you know your credit limit and stay within this to avoid incurring overlimit fees.
- Credit cards are a convenient and secure way of short-term borrowing, but if you find that you are unable to clear your balance over the long-term, talk to us early and we will work with you to try and find a solution.

Managing your overdraft

An overdraft can be a good idea if you need a little flexibility with your day-to-day expenses from month to month.

- If you have an overdraft facility, ensure you know your agreed limit and stay within this to avoid incurring charges. You should also aim to manage the balance regularly in credit
- If you have any difficulty managing your overdraft, then talk to us early, we will work with you to try and find a way to manage your payments.

Managing your loans

If you want to borrow money and pay back an amount every month, a personal loan is an option.

- You may be able to borrow more than with a credit card
- Your personal loan repayments will be fixed amounts. This means you know your repayment amount is going to be the same every month, so it makes it easier to budget
- You are able to choose how long you'd like to take to repay the loan. Remember that the length of the loan will affect the amount you are charged in interest
- You may be able to consolidate several debts into one personal loan, potentially reducing your monthly costs. Be careful as this may mean that you could pay more charges or a higher interest rate and, if you extend the length of the loan, you could pay more overall
- Personal loans may have higher rates of interest than other forms of borrowing, particularly if you want to borrow a smaller amount, such as £1,000
- Because the interest rate may reduce the more you borrow, you may be tempted to take out a bigger loan than you need and this should be avoided.

Debts and how to deal with them

Section 3:

Debts and how to deal with them

At some point in their lives most people will have issues with their finances. Sometimes its cause can simply be a part of life, like your car unexpectedly breaking down, a bill that is larger than expected or a holiday that turned out to be surprisingly expensive. Other times falling into debt can have a very obvious cause such as the loss of a job, a separation or illness. Even happy occurrences, such as buying your dream home or the arrival of a new baby, can cause a hiccup in the smooth running of your finances.

Debt can creep up on you, but if you keep an eye on your finances you'll be able to see it coming and hopefully act to prevent it becoming too serious. Below are some warning signs that may indicate you are falling into trouble:

- You don't have any savings
- You only pay the minimum balance off your credit cards each month
- You are occasionally late making payments on bills or you skip them completely
- You don't know how much debt you actually have
- You have been denied credit
- Your salary does not clear your overdraft.

Getting out of debt

If you find yourself in debt, here's a few ways to help you regain control of your finances:

- Don't ignore it. Debt won't go away on its own, you can make positive steps to clear it
- You should do a thorough analysis of your day-to-day spending to help you identify where your money is going. Our budget planner should help you do this
- Look at making some cutbacks. Could you consider bringing a packed lunch to work instead of buying a sandwich or eating out? What about staying in every second weekend? You don't have to cut out all your luxuries, but you will be surprised at how quickly the pennies can add up

Planning for your future

Section 4:

Planning for your future

What if? When it comes to the future it is important to prepare for the what ifs? What if I want to buy a house? What if I lose my job? What if my partner, or I, becomes ill? What if I want to retire early? There are plenty of ways to prepare for the future. You may want to put money aside for that rainy day or to buy your dream home. You may also want to prepare for the things that may happen, like the loss of your income, and for things that will happen, like your retirement. Here are a few tips for planning and protecting your future.

Saving for a rainy day

A holiday, a new car, a rainy day. There are plenty of reasons to start saving and no doubt you know them all, but when it comes to actually putting the money aside, most people find other things to spend it on.

Here's a few tips on how to make saving easy and painless:

Work out how much you can afford to save each month in a sensible way. Are there some months where you can put away a little more? Find a savings plan that's right for you and work out how much you can afford to put by each month

- Know your terms. Make sure you understand the terms of your savings account and try to choose one that suits you and has a good balance of interest rate and access. Keep up to date with your finances. Interest rates may change frequently, so it's important to keep an eye on what's happening so you can alter your finances to match.
- Start today. The sooner you start saving, the better.
